2. Measures taken to complete the syllabus of courses and programs.	The Academic activities at KARE was executed in full compliance with the academic calendar virtually during the entire span of lockdown and the subsequent partial/complete state-wise lockdown. There were significant deliberations made to identify the suitable pedagogies and tools to deliver courses and laboratories virtual/online. Faculty are provided with two week workshop (virtually), on the familiarisation of tools, pedagogy to be adopted for the delivery. Faculty prepared high quality content adopting the SWAYAM four quadrant approach for the courses they are taking during the semester well in advance and content is hosted on decided LMS developed by institution at MOOC.Kalasalingam.ac.in. Class time tables are re-drawn, considering the requirement to of students, faculty and resource optimisation. Google Meet is used as a tool for delivery of classes. The recorded lectures are shared to all the students for accessing the class content if any network disruptions. Virtual laboratories developed at other premier institutions and our own virtual labs are extensively used to give the labs oratory experience to students. Course delivery and students experience is constantly monitored by the peer teams and feedback from the students is taken periodically to improve the delivery. Final year projects were chosen/given considering the resources available with the students and the problems posted by the pandemic. Periodic reviews of project work for final years was conducted through online mode, and care was taken that the students were given various options for the successful completion of the project and similar such options were extended to the completion of community service project as well.
